Daney Dawson:

John Meyer is a young man living in Willits with his family. He owns 20 acres or so, land that he has planned to develop for his family to live and thrive. Sierra Railroad, parent company to the Skunk Train, has sued him to seize his property through a probably illegal eminent domain claim, for their own use for the Willits-FB Skunk Train operation. Meyer is fighting back legally, to defend his property from seizure, but the legal expenses have driven him to the verge of bankruptcy.

His case has bearing on what happens here in Fort Bragg, and Mendocino County, since the same company is attempting to foist their mega-development on our Noyo Headlands. It is important that Meyer not only win his case, but not be driven to the poor house in doing so. He needs public support to continue his fight to keep his property, and set a precedent for what is ethically, and legally, right.

So please, donate as much as you can to his Go Fund Me account to help him with his legal expenses. I personally vouch for the legitimacy of his appeal.
